ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL.—CAUTION.—This oil is a genuine article, and is sold by respectable chemists and perfumers.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT.—Diseases of Childhood.—For worms, colds, eruptions, and all skin diseases, this ointment possesses truly wonderful and creative properties. For eruptions, bedsores, scrofula, and enlarged glands, no medicine for efficacy can be compared with Holloway's Ointment. Sold at 244, Strand, London, and at all druggists.

FREEMAN, BROTHERS. Photographers, by appointment to His Excellency the Governor-General.—Framed taken in Messrs. FREEMAN'S new and spacious gallery, at reduced prices, by the most approved photographic processes, and artistically coloured. Children taken instantaneously. Photographic views of Sydney for home presents. 302, George-street.

M. R. T. JONES. Agent for the Purchase, Sale, and Shipping of Horses.—Shippers of horses to the neighbouring colonies or to foreign ports are informed that T. J. Jones will carefully select and ship horses of any particular stock, and in any quantity, in proof of his ability in this respect of his profession, Mr. Jones can state that he has been the purchaser of the most valuable horses in 1857 and 1858, and has had the whole management and shipping of nearly 2000 horses for the Honorable East India Company in 1846 and 1847, in which a better class of horses were never shipped from Australia.

Buyers of horses are referred to the fact that Mr. Jones has been the buyer, and for many years proprietor, of the "Black-street" stable, which his failing health in 1852 compelled him to give up, during which time the first and best business of the profession was in Mr. Jones' hands.

The House, Kent-street, Church-hill.

THE OLD HOUSE IN PARK-STREET.—WOMAN'S EYES.

Whether black as the raven, or blue as the skies,
Or ever with evil or burning bright;
So they beam with the lustre that gives them control,
To give man the heart's desire, or lighten his soul;
And when the heart's desire is given, the heart is soothed;
And when the heart is soothed, the heart is soothed;
As never he heard of that mysterious doom.

The quick as the lightning, and quicker than thought,
To give man the heart's desire, or lighten his soul;
And when the heart's desire is given, the heart is soothed;
And when the heart is soothed, the heart is soothed;
As never he heard of that mysterious doom.

We have lived many years, we have doubled a score,
Yet could the fate grant us so many years more
To spend in the search of that gem upon earth—
Most worthy the name of woman and worth—
No gem would we value, no jewel we prize,
Like the love-light that gleams in fair woman's bright eyes.

Or black eyes or blue eyes, eyes hand or grey,
So they but conduct their fair owners this way.
When in search of what no lady seeks with regret—
A sweet lady seeks with regret, and a sweet lady seeks with regret;
Our song ends to that, and we ever shall prize
The Ladies, no matter the hue of their eyes.

WILKES and SONS, druggists and chemists, Park-street.

DO NOT DELAY.—DANFORTH, EAGAR, and CO., beg to inform the public that, in consequence of the improvements to their premises taking a longer time to complete than they had anticipated, they have determined to continue SELLING OFF the Stock at Commerce House, 406, George-street, for a short time longer. As this is a rare opportunity, and as they will sell at a price that will give the public a chance to get a bargain, they will sell at a price that will give the public a chance to get a bargain.

MILLET (in answer to J. C. Hopkins), Tailor, & Draper, &c., begs to acknowledge the liberality he has experienced from those gentlemen who have favoured him with their support and recommendations, and to assure them that his arrangements are now completed to place his ESTABLISHMENT on a par with London Houses of business.

parties is entirely out of the question. Quite enough has been said already, and it was certainly preposterous in the Townsends' case to come forward with any fresh proposal of the kind. Accordingly the Mayor, who did not expect their application to be successful, has been obliged to tell the latter that he has a desire for notoriety beyond what could be justified on a charge of their proper functions.

A correspondent of the Colonist says that Mr Dalrymple was at Waverly, Broadwood, on the 13th ultimo, and that the whole party appeared to be pushing on successfully.

It is also stated that the Colonist has been directed to send a small inlet or harbour between Britis Island and Double Point. Some of the timber-cutters having come to the conclusion that the Government had sent a raft reported the discovery, and the Government have ordered the Colonist with the Marine Surveyor, Lieutenant Heath, on board, to investigate.

A comparative statement of the consolidated revenue of the colony for the first quarter of the present and previous years has been published. The following summary shows the increase or decrease under each head.

	First quarter, 1861.	First quarter, 1860.
Land revenue	£5,578 3 9	£11,134 10 7
Excise	4,187 3 0	14,968 15 7
License	1,157 0 0	1,042 10 0
Office fees	711 0 0	1,042 10 0

Special	25 16 3	115 18 0
Maclean	25 16 3	115 18 0
Intelligence	25 16 3	115 18 0
Gold	7 4 1	8 0 0
Total	£10,250 9 8	£29,641 7 8
Total increase		£2,391 17 4

The above rate of increase will scarcely come up to the estimated "ways and means" for 1961, but the long-term effect of the present system of levying the revenue to some extent, and in some quarters, is expected to show better results.

The Government have decided upon removing the party of 1000 men from the barracks at the present night or to the barracks from that town. The reason for this appears to be to diminish the facilities which the troops at present possess of obtaining information from the local population.

A man named Peter McGregor was accidentally killed while driving the ration cart on Fassifern Station. The cart was captured on the top of him, and in this position he was hurled 300 yards, where he was discovered and extracted, the horse kicking him severely as he lay in the helpless condition. He only lived a few hours after he was taken to hospital.

A fatal accident occurred on the evening of Wednesday last, at Eaugerra Creek, some six or seven miles from Brisbane. John Dunford, a bullock driver, well known on the district, was returning to creek with a bullock team, as usual, when he was struck, as well as his wife, who was with him in the bullock. All the bullocks in the team were also driven. Both his man and woman had been in the habit of returning from Brisbane to the creek, and on the previous evening happened the male deadened at least was partially under the influence of liquor, but according to the testimony of a witness, who was present, and who is as good as his word, Dunford, not to such an extent as he usually was. This person warned Dunford that the creek was rising, but he appeared to doubt the information very lightly. No one else was present, and the only person who was with him when the dead bullocks were seen in the creek that morning being as dead, search was made, and the bodies which flooded at the time that no person in his right mind would have attempted to cross it.

The Superintendent of Telegraphs, Mr. Austin, telegraphed to Mr. Austin, Illinois, by mail, on consequence of the bad weather and the wretched condition of the river, that he was unable to get to St. Louis until Wednesday next. The thin attendance was entirely owing to the subject, for the public evidently had no interest in the weather.

The Maid of Judah, which arrived from Covington Saturday morning in water, and was to be ready for sea to-day. An anonymous stated, she is the second ship that has been wrecked in the Gulf of Mexico, and is a small schooner, composed of 1815 barrels and 4 pockets wool, 893 hams, 1 cask of tallow, and 26 packages sundries—the whole valued at $100,000.

All last week we had nearly constant rain. The Bremer, which was wrecked Monday, and several of the stores were submerged. In many parts of the district the creeks were overflowing, and the water was so high that it was just a step to it. The volume of the river at Brittain's was considerably increased, but we had nothing like a flood. The water was so high, however, as to render it probable that it takes a great deal of rain indeed to make a flood of the banks. The current brought down a large quantity of dead trees, and in coming up the river, the engine of the Telegram was stopped, and the vessel was in danger of a collision with the steamer's coming into dangerous collision with the numerous floating and sunken logs and trees. The weather was so bad, that the vessel was obliged to stop. The rain was fair, but excessively sultry. During the night we had frequent showers, and I am afraid we are yet far from the end of the rainy weather. The Telegram leaves on Monday morning, at 7 o'clock.

FOOD FOR THE CLAMBERG—Destruction of Mr. J. W. Clark's mill, on the Mississippi, by the late heavy rains would be the cause of considerable damage to the town of Grudition and the district generally; and we regret to hear that the loss has been realized to a very great extent. On Good Friday the rain was so completely washed away, but the Traveller's Rest, was not at all over supplied with particulars. We have not been able to ascertain whether our up-country friends were present, but, judging from the fact that several head of dead cattle were lying on the river when the flood was at its height, it is more than probable they have not escaped the visitation. The mission from Tenterden arrived at 11 a.m. yesterday morning, and reports the rumour as being in a wretched condition, and all the creeks rising. (Gleaner and Richmond Examiner.)

At the same time, the Government of the Straits Settlements are now starting up in the Botanical Gardens, from seeds by the Governor of Hongkong, some 50,000 stone plants from the Straits Settlements, and will be ready to be sown by a second sowing.

The Court of the West County Court was crowded, on the 5th instant, with members of the theatrical profession and the spectators, at the trial of the cause of Edwards v. Brookes, the defendant, a well-known actor, who was charged, in default, to arrive out of the proceedings, but the performance was so successful, that the defendant was allowed to appear, and to be of the most comestomic character, and would surely find it was a known rule a repetition, which will, however, be postponed, until the 12th inst., when the trial will be resumed by the defendant. The plaintiff recovered a verdict for £25.

To the Editor of the Herald.

Sir.—This time last year two very substantial bridges on the Great Southern line at Macquarie Fields were swept away by a flood, and the Government have since erected two structures which, however well they have served their temporary purpose, are comparatively of a frail description. In the early morning of Tuesday morning, the 12th inst., a flood of water, which had been accumulating in the main, exercising a great pressure on the bridge, swept the same until it could be ascertained whether the line generally, and these temporary bridges in particular, were safe. It was ascertained that the bridge was safe, and that to-day (Wednesday) that he is considered to have interrupted the traffic without sufficient cause. In consequence of this, the Government have decided to proceed, and a vivid recollection of the disasters of last year, at last not in vain, Mr. Nield stopped the trains on Tuesday morning, and last night the Government have ordered the bridge between Liverpool and Campbelltown to be replaced by a more substantial one.

But the temporary bridges have—thanks to Mr. Gibbons, who erected them—withstood the force of this last flood without being shaken—but, who could tell this until the water had in some degree subsided? The trains were at the earliest possible moment after the bridges were found to be safe.

Suppose, Sir, that the 6:30 a.m. passenger train to New York from Cambridge had been perforce delayed by the starting torrent which threatened every moment to demolish these temporary bridges on Tuesday morning. It would have been then said of the tragic man, "He had the misfortune of last year's havoc, had allowed his train to run."

My persuasion is that Mr. Neale deserves in this instance commendation and encouragement—certainly not blame.

G. F. M'ARTNEU.

Macgregor Field, April 10th.

of the cogged rails and the cogged wheels would of course be an additional expense to the ordinary style of locomotive and rail, but if the plan answered this cost would be trifling compared with that of excavations and bankments.

A somewhat similar idea was some time suggested by one of our correspondents, instead of having cogs he proposed to use inclined an outer rail of a wedge shape, and have the outer rim of the driving wheels of locomotive made of the same shape, inverted, so that one should fit exactly the other like an inverted ϵ (V) on the top of the letter A. The bite would no doubt be considerable, but so also would the resistance to friction in the release from the bite, and latter would counterbalance the former.

Mr. BELL tells us that we do not need of these contrivances, and that smooth wood will bite sufficiently well on wood of similar texture to answer all practical purposes. His plan has been submitted in form to the Legislature, but there it seems to slumber, and whether it is ever to reach the practical trial we do not know.

We cannot altogether avoid the expense of constructing a special road for the traffic, but

The loose talk that is sometimes uttered of laying rails on the natural surface of the road, and so forming tramroads for mere cost of the labour material, is delusive. The experience of last year has been enough to shew that considerable distances there must be degree of embankment to lift the rails manently above flood level, and there must be bridges or culverts to let off the flood water.

and the creeks and rivers spanned by elevated and substantial structures that will withstand fierce and sudden torrents, and offer a firm passable roadway in the heaviest weather.
And so broken, and rugged, and precipitous our main roads pass, that some cutting down the gradients even under any system.

diminished if we could without any special difficulty take loaded trains up inclines of fifteen. When railroad traction was first covered, it was thought that a level, or near level was necessary, and wide detours or extensive works were submitted to in order to get to this level. Then gradients of one in a hundred were admitted, and by and by as the necessity of dealing with mountainous country and gradients of one in fifty, and even one in thirty were found practicable. What the absolute limit of the ascending power of a locomotive on smooth rails has not been exactly determined; but in nearly all cases steep gradients involve heavier engines, and therefore heavier rails, and consequently an increased first cost as well as an augmented charge for wear and tear. If, by any contrivance, we can manage to do with lighter engines that are strong enough to draw

The suggestions of private persons are of very little use so long as the Government maintains a monopoly of the railways. If private enterprise were once more fairly in the field, it would be effective and yet sufficiently economical to be worth the Government's while to give it a chance of a trial. The Government finds funds, and this is the only way in which it can be made to do so.

it is the sole necessity for it. it is a heavy price to pay for this advantage. we have a damper thrown upon all private initiative and enterprise in the way of providing for internal communication. And though error was well intentioned, and, at the same time, commended itself generally to public opinion as the only feasible policy, it is probable that we should have been better off if Government had not interfered.

DESIGNS FOR THE HOUSE OF PARLIAMENT.—Designs and plans for the proposed new House of Parliament and Government buildings, received by the Minister for Works in competition for the prize of three hundred guineas, offered for the best design were exhibited yesterday, in the hiring room at the old Immigration Barracks, and were inspected by several members of Parliament and other gentlemen. The designs are twenty-one in number, each also planning the same process at the different floors of the building. The proposed building from various sources and directions. As might be expected, there is a great variety in the collection, both as to the style or architecture and as to the amount of skill displayed. Some of the designs are extremely beautiful, many of them being rich and elaborate, and the general effect is one of interest and imposing. Fifteen of the designs are classified by their style, and six are Gothic. The latter are characterized by their simple and elegant design, and are of a handsome, and evidently adapted for modern use; but they are not entirely suited for the purpose of the collection.

tutions in the suburbs of London, or in the Thames valley. There is a peculiarity in their style that would, perhaps, not be appreciated or approved of by a continental eye — and they certainly would not be in keeping with the surrounding buildings in Macquarie-street. Others it may generally be said that too little has been paid to the wants of this climate in the inn verandahs or colonnades. Most of the designs are set off with lofty turrets or domes, a general outline of which, studies of some of the structures in London may be recognised. Only the exterior views is coloured it having been the instructions contained in the circular offering premium that the drawings were not to be sold. From the general unsuitability to the site and the climate of several of the more elegant of the designs it appears likely that the choice will lie between three, or perhaps four, though it is doubtful whether either of them will completely realise the ideas of the committee of selection or of the public, as to the style of building which should be erected for the Houses of Parliament and Government Offices. It may be proposed to recommend alterations in carrying out the construction and design to which the committee have agreed.

tenders furnish an estimate of the cost of the building, and this price is down at $500,000, not including prices; the cost of the work in this would nearly double that amount. The design is presented on view only by tickets, but it is a demand intended to throw the exhibition on the public. It is very desirable that public opinion should be elicited as to the proposed building. Final steps are taken.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from Mr. A. H. Merrill to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, on MONDAY, 10th April, the following property:

All that piece of land on the Veterans' Swamp, containing 14 acres, bounded by Stock's grant, the Church and School Estate, and the RAILY GOVERNMENT DRAIN, separating it from Messrs. Pender, Bray, and Ogg's wool washing establishment, at which is erected a NEAT VERANDAH COTTAGE, built of brick, with a large verandah, and a room, with detached two-stall stable, coach-house, &c. Upwards of two acres of the land is enclosed and has been watered, and the same is crossed by a good fence with the homestead.

THIS property is well worthy the attention of market gardeners. The land is the rich fresh-water swamp for which this locality is so celebrated, and is well drained. The improvements are capital order, and it is fit for immediate occupation.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH, in directing particular attention to this unreserved sale, would remind investors that this will be the last opportunity for securing an investment on favourable terms in this eligible locality.

A large proportion of the estate has already been sold, built upon, and otherwise improved. A culvert has been made over Watts Creek, and the road through by Representatives to Chippendale opened, and active steps are now being taken to open Cleveland-street in this manner, which as compared with the old road, will save time from Newbern and Camperdown to the city as a great saving in distance will be effected.

The main line of the City divides the estate, and the situation being elevated and very healthy, it has now become a favourite place of residence for those whose avocations, while, at times, they may enjoy the quietude of a suburb on returning from the work of the day.

The University grounds opposite the property greatly enhance its value, and the large open space of ground in the reserve park can be used as a place of recreation, and as a large sum of money is now being expended in the erection of new buildings, the University will naturally be attracted to the neighbourhood.

The whole of the first class of that celebrated freehold property, CHUTER'S ESTATE, BLUE'S POINT, NORTH SHORE, extending from the Lane Cove wharf to the ferry wharf, and comprising Berry's Bay. The unimproved land consists of sites fringing good streets, and many with extensive WATER FRONTAGES.

The improvements comprise LOT 1.—CHUTER HOUSE, a handsome villa resi-brick, stone-built, with highest basement story, and a large, well-finished garden, two-stall stable, coach-house, yard, garden, well of water, etc.

THE HOUSE comprises about THREE-QUARTERS OF AN ACRE, most of which is tastefully laid out as a garden.

⌘ This is without exception the most favourably situated property on the North Shore.

Overlooking Berry's Bay, and commanding extensive views of the harbour, the hills, and the city, and being only a few minutes' walk from Blue's's Yard, it is scarcely to be possible to select building sites in this delightful neighbourhood.

CHURCH HOUSE is a substantially built and well-finished villa, and occupies a splendid site. The inn and stores front the main road, in the best business position, and
